The selection and retention of key talent can make or break a business's plan. How people enter into an organization plays a critical role in their longevity. While managers believe the people leave because of money, the real reason is they leave because of poor fit with their job, organization culture, manager or work environment. Most of these factors can be effectively overcome with an inclusive Job On-Boarding program. By the end of this session participants will be able to: • Define Strategic People Objectives and the Human Resources' Role • Set Goals for Strategic People Objectives • How Successful Job On-Boarding fulfills Strategic People Objectives • How to motivate, reinforce and measure with Job On-Boarding Program Attendees will be invited to bring their current people strategic objectives to the session. In break out groups they will evaluate how powerful their objective is and how they might improve the effectiveness of their strategy implementation. Lynn Dessert, Leadership Breakthrough, Inc., has worked as a independent coach, consultant and facilitator for over 13 years specializing in executive, leadership and career development.
